COOKIES POLICY

When you access or use our website and its content, we may collect information from your devices using 'Cookies'. Cookies perform various different functions, and the purpose of this policy is to help you to understand how they work, and why we use them.

A Cookie is in fact a small text file that is sent to your PC or other device which contains information that allows me to recognise that you have used my website before. They are widely used to make websites work more efficiently for visitors, and to provide information to us as owner of the website. No personal data is collected, and we are unable to associate the cookie with an individual's name, address or other personal information.

We use Cookies for statistical purposes to track how many individual visitors have visited our website and how often they may visit. We track your visit to different pages including the sequence of the pages you view, and the time spent on each page. All of this can help us to analyse our website, find out what's working and what can be improved.

We also use third party cookies such as Google Analytics and Facebook:

- Google Analytics is used to analyse the use of our website. Google Analytics generates statistical and other information about website use. Google may also transfer this information to third parties where required to do so by law, or where such third parties process the information on Google's behalf. Google will not associate your IP address with any other data held by Google.

- Facebook is a social media platform we use to communicate with our clients/potential clients through both unpaid posts and paid advertising. We use Cookies to measure the effectiveness of paid advertising on Facebook to ensure the money we spend is used effectively. They also enable us to either service advertisements to or exclude people who have visited our website.

Targeting cookies are used to:

1. Collect information about browser habits to target website content and to target advertising.
2. Link to social media networks who may use this information about your visit to target advertising to you.
3. To provide advertisers with information on your visit so that they can present you with adverts that you may be interested in.
4. Deliver content and marketing communications tailored to your interests based on information from your visit.

5. To perform site retargeting. A retargeting pixel (a tiny unit of code) on our webpage leaves a cookie in the user's browser, which causes our adverts to be displayed or to not be displayed to you when you visit certain websites within a retargeting network (e.g. Google Display Network, Facebook etc).
6. To perform search retargeting, which allows our adverts to be displayed on third party webpages, based upon your previous web search activities.

Data Collection

Third parties (including, for example, advertising networks and providers of external services like web traffic analysis services) may also use cookies on our website. These cookies are likely to be analytical/performance cookies or targeting cookies. No personal data is collected, and we are unable to associate the cookie with an individual's name, address or other personal information. A list of third parties who may deploy a cookie to your device, with a link to their cookie details is below:
